

NEC and NTT Communications Transport SDN PoC

Current network operation and management workflows suffer from fragmentation caused by silos of operation-domains, layers, network equipment and protocols. NTT Communications and NEC are aiming to solve this issue with the abstraction model, which enables the automation through integrated global view of the network across operation domains. We are working toward realizing a system with integrated visualization, design, and resource configuration and management features, which can smoothly migrate from existing network to SDN.